Zoom General Meeting

November 15th, 2020

10:00 AM Zoom Room opens

10:00 Breakout Groups (these are fun)

10:40 Business Meeting

11:00 Matt Wetstein lecture

Politics and Ideology in the U.S. and Canadian Supreme Court

U.S. political scientists describe the Supreme Court as a political institution that regularly features ideological divisions. Bush v. Gore (2000) is the epitome of this attitudinal description (where a 5-4 conservative majority sided with Republican arguments on Florida's ballot counting rules). Recent Supreme Court nomination battles validate this political interpretation of the Supreme Court. But what about other Supreme Courts? Do they exhibit the same degree of ideological decision making, and if not why not? Canada's Supreme Court presents an obvious test case to explore this question. Matt Wetstein's lecture will cover some of the similarities and differences between the two courts, and draw some conclusions about the political and ideological forces that shape judicial decision making across two high courts.

Matt Wetstein is in his third year as President of Cabrillo College. Prior to coming to Cabrillo he served as the Vice President of Instruction and Planning at San Joaquin Delta College in Stockton, California. He started his teaching career at Delta College in 1996 as a Political Science Professor. Matt holds a bachelor's degree in Political Science from the University of Saint Francis in Illinois, and Masters and Doctoral degrees in Political Science from Northern Illinois University. His dissertation analyzed abortion rates in the 50 U.S states and was later published by SUNY Press. His published research has focused on abortion politics in the U.S. and more recently on comparative judicial decision making, particularly focusing on the Supreme Court of Canada. He and his wife Cindy Ostberg have published more than a dozen articles and three books on the decisions of the Canadian Court, including a book in 2017 titled Value Change in the Supreme Court of Canada (University of Toronto Press).

Message from the President

Are there any things we are doing now that you would like to see continue after the pandemic? This unfortunate happening has provided a rare opportunity to reflect on our lives and perhaps reset some of our ways. I can think of a few new habits to keep post-lockdown:

- Returning to a simpler life
- Spending more time in nature
- Helping one another
- Wearing masks in public to protect all
- Staying home when feeling sick
- Controlling lines and social distances in grocery stores
- Washing hands often and covering coughs and sneezes
- Reducing consumerism- spending less money for material goods based on instant gratification- not lasting happiness
- Not eating out- enjoying cooking at home and enjoying the tastes
- Mending and making-do
- Buying from small local businesses
- Slowing down and putting less pressure on ourselves
- Having space in your life to breathe and reflect and focus on the important things and people
- Prioritizing family and friends
- Enjoying leisure time.
- Realizing the interconnectedness of the world
- Donating to more charitable causes
- Reducing carbon footprint
- Exercising daily
- Baking, vegetarian cooking, growing herbs

Do any of those resonate with you? I hope so.

Bonita Sebastian

Zoom Courses

Note: Starting in January all meeting invitations will only be sent to current members of OLLI

Modern Molecular Biology

Saturday Mornings, 10:30 - Noon, 7, 14, 21 November and 5 December.

A typical animal cell contains more than 40,000 different kinds of molecules. In the past 20 years great progress has been made in understanding how these molecules combine and interact to form a living creature.

As in previous years Professor Emeritus Barry Bowman will organize the course and offer two lectures. Two other professors from the Molecular, Cell and Developmental Biology Department at UCSC will present lectures covering topics related to their research programs.

These talks are intended for a general audience. A scientific background or knowledge of biology is not expected. Barry Bowman, the course coordinator, will begin with a basic review of genes, proteins and cells.

Lecture #1. Professor Emeritus Barry Bowman, An introduction to the basics of molecular biology

Lecture #2. Assistant Professor Josh Arribere, How quality control protects our cells

Lecture #3. Professor Martha Zuniga, SARS Wars: Immune defenses against SARS-CoV-2 and COVID-19 pathology

Lecture #4. Professor Emeritus Barry Bowman, Digging deeper into DNA

Our OLLI Reporter, Johnna, sent me the following: I would also be interested in people's pandemic tips, kind of a round-robin article with snippets from about 30 different people of how they keep their spirits up and themselves growing in meaningful ways.

This would be very helpful to all of us. Please email her directly at aleena12teacher@yahoo.com

Thanks for helping us.

Counting Our Blessings

Amongst our many blessings we might proclaim, being a member of Osher Lifelong Learners would surely resonate with us all . . .

This organization, with its focus on learning through courses, Interest Groups and Lectures, coupled with our member acquaintances who enlighten and inspire us, has stimulated us all to grow . . .

Yet, beyond all these benefits, our organization is founded upon enabling UCSC students through our financial contributions while validating their endeavors. Our Silvia Miller Scholarship Program pools our resources, strengthening our impact toward that end.

This year, over 100 students requested scholarship support from us. They applied in writing, responding to a questionnaire, sharing their endeavors, hopes and dreams. Our response was to form a committee of fifteen volunteers who evaluated their responses, identifying thirty of the most outstanding to receive $1,500 each for this academic year.

Our volunteer scholarship teams, composed of Florence Orenstein - Alverda Orlando, Ruth Keeley - Tom Manheim, Sue Myers - Marjorie Simon, Lois Widom - Valera Templeman, Pam Hardy - Margie Lafia, Topsy Smalley - Roy Vigliecca, and Cindy Margolin - Dennis Morris, found themselves blessed by a pool of STARS scholarship applicants who were amazingly well qualified and skilled in presenting their merit, reassuring our committee in the qualities of the new class of re-entry students in these times of distance-learning.

Overall, it was a joyful experience reading of their achievements, overcoming so much adversity with perseverance, enthusiasm and admirable goals. And to share in our membership blessings with you, is as our students say, 'huge!'

NOTES FROM LOIS

I must admit I was more than a little concerned about having our courses on Zoom. Would they really be a satisfactory substitute for our crowding together in the garden room of the museum or being in an actual UCSC classroom? Would we be as engaged with an instructor who appears on our computer? Would we be able to have questions answered and discussion develop?

All of you may not agree, but I feel the answer to all of these questions is "yes." And, more than that, I have been feeling that there are advantages to online classes. Admittedly I use a large desk top computer so I have a wonderfully large image. I feel that the instructor and I are sitting comfortably in our homes and they are very personally sharing their knowledge with me. I feel that I am getting to know the instructors and my fellow students better because I am getting a glimpse of their homes, Our members seem very comfortable asking questions and engaging in discussion. So far, all of our instructors have expressed satisfaction in teaching this way.

So, I have two goals in writing this. I would like to hear if those of you who have attended our classes agree with me. And I would like to convince those of you who hesitate to take a course online to give it a chance.

There are the other advantages that the courses are free, no parking problems; there is time for an extra cup of coffee, etc. etc. See you in class!

I have often suggested to the membership that many of them could teach classes, and I mentioned many times that I welcome board members finding teachers, with not much success. However, at our last meeting I found someone in the breakout session I attended, who will probably be teaching a short class for us.

Now that we know that teaching OLLI courses can be both fun and satisfying, I am sure that there are many of you out there who would enjoy the experience. We can be quite flexible about subject matter, length, time, etc. Let's talk about it---
LoWidom@yahoo.com.

Remembering Steven Zaslav

A tribute to a Lifelong Learner

By OLLI Past Presidents Bill Patterson and Mark Gordon

He was a friend to us all back when Lifelong Learners met in the Stevenson College Coffee Shop. We were a small group of friends and Stephen was a mainstay amongst us, fun to be with, encouraging, always ready to be helpful.

Our General Meetings perked up when Steve found and began setting up a rudimentary speaker system, for he was our go-to guy on getting all kinds of things under way.

Back then we knew him as the board member who took on the editing of our Newsletter, seeing to its writing, printing, and mailing, back when postcards were mailed in place of Newsletters on alternate months to save meager expenses. He knew how to make the Newsletter a thing of beauty, while accurate and informative.

Soon, communications needed expanding as our membership numbers grew, so our board reached out again to Steve, seeking his technology expertise to also serve as a WebMaster. He created a website from scratch. Resourcefully, he effectively set the stage for the robust website we have and value today.

Furthering on his work as Webmaster, he facilitated the transition to online transactions for OLLI memberships, courses and donations that we enjoy today. This involved complicated work with UC Santa Cruz's University Relations folks, who were delighted to work with us.

Steve came from the New York City area. He went to Cornell, then started a career in technology on the east coast. Sadly, in recent years he developed a debilitating lung condition. No longer able to be physically active and with a bleak prognosis, he continued to be active in OLLI, and later in the Watsonville Wetlands Watch. His inner strength never shown more than recently when we, his friends, continued to savor his wry sense of humor and his sparkling wit.

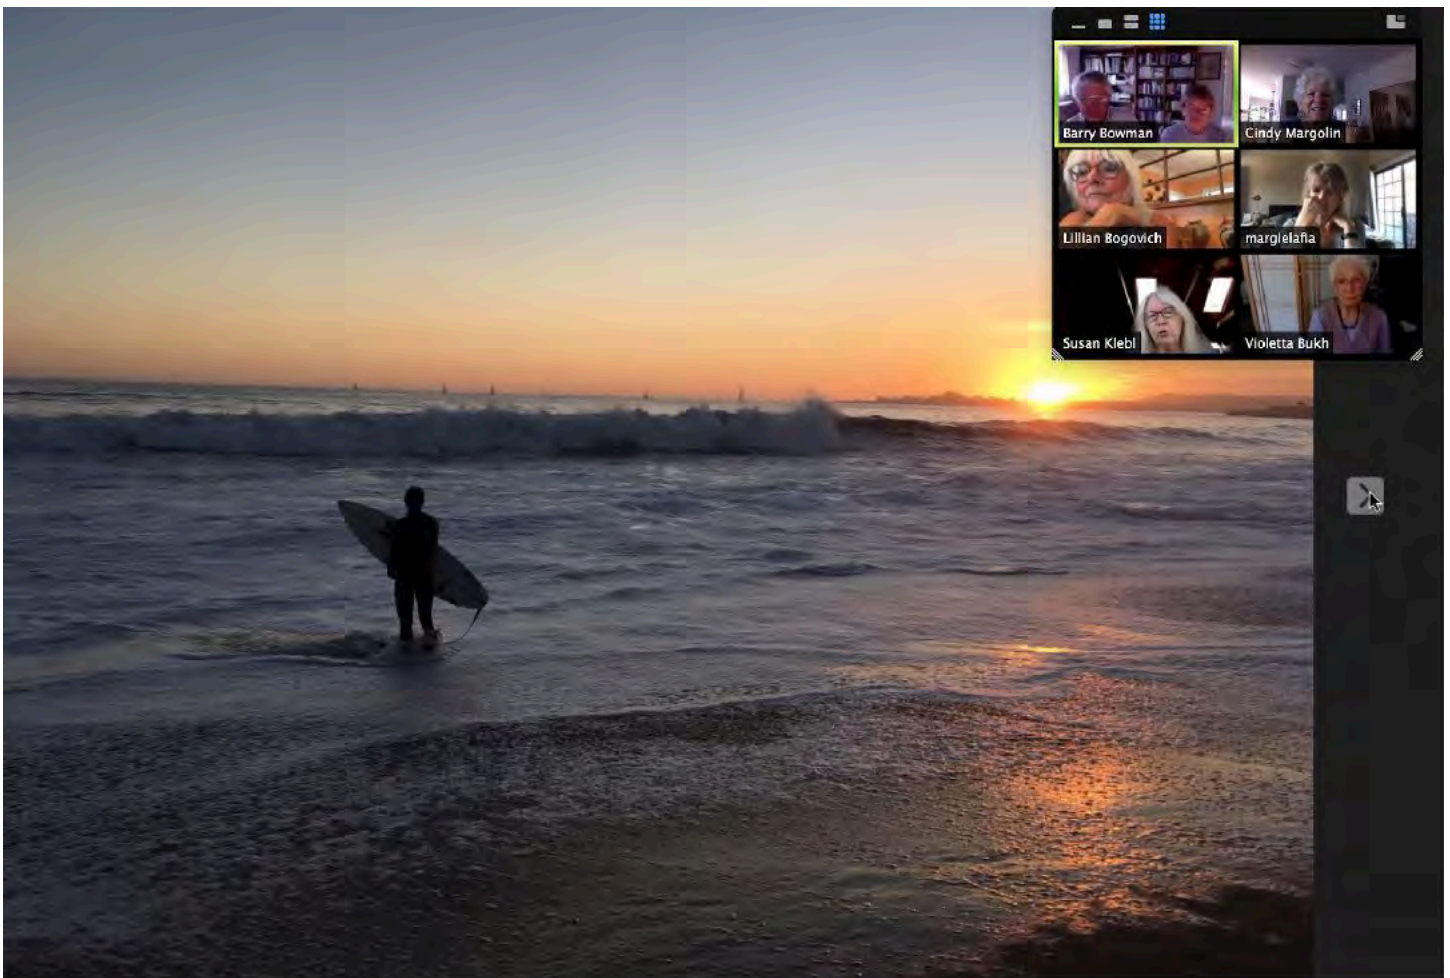

Many of us miss him as a friend and as a generous asset to OLLI.

A note from UCSC

To: UC Santa Cruz community
From: Chancellor Cynthia Larive
Re: Sad news regarding founding administrator Harold A. (Hal) Hyde

It is with a very heavy heart that I share the news of the passing of UC Santa Cruz Vice Chancellor Emeritus Hal Hyde. Hal, who helped transform our campus from a working ranch to a globally known teaching and research institution, died peacefully of natural causes on Monday, Oct. 12, at his home in Corralitos. He was 97.

It is not an overstatement to say that Santa Cruz County is the cultural and intellectual hub it is today in large part because of Hal, shaped by his commitment to and vision for the place his family has called home for generations. He was a key player in the creation of not only UC Santa Cruz, but of Cabrillo College, too, as well as the Community Foundation of Santa Cruz County and the Cultural Council of Santa Cruz County. Certainly many others played a role in our county's evolution from an agricultural region to a center of innovation and education, but Hal was the person people called when they wanted vision transformed into reality. He got things done, and we are a better campus and community because of it.

From Us and UCSC

From Bill Patterson:
Escaping Safely 'Social Distancing'

Our group of friends meet each Friday at Noon, bringing our own lunches, to enjoy each other's company. We stay outdoors in relaxing garden settings in chairs arranged a safe distance apart. We find much in common, current events, family doings, and projects underway.

The benefits are the uplifting of each member's feelings through our caring - sharing.
