The Future of Forests on the UCSC Campus and Around the World

Do trees senesce in old age? Can our forests keep up with climate change? How are emergent pathogens changing our forests? Like forest ecosystems around the world, California's coastal forests are changing rapidly in response to global changes. Since 2007, UCSC students have been collecting data on a mapped Forest Ecology Research Plot on the Campus Natural Reserve, providing critical long-term data on the growth, death, and reproduction of 34 species of trees, shrubs, and lianas, as well as the animals and fungi that depend on them. The UCSC FERP (ferp.ucsc.edu) spans 16 ha (40 acres) with more than 40,000 tagged, identified, and mapped woody stems that are re-measured every five years. It serves as the Mediterranean-climate anchor of a global ForestGEO network spanning 28 countries. Student-led teams of UCSC student interns learn the skills of forest ecologists while producing data used by ecologists worldwide to answer pressing questions about the future of forests from local to global.

Professor Gilbert has had a highly productive research career with a focus on the interactions between fungi and plants. Starting more than 30 years ago, he has been studying the tropical forests in Panama while also investigating redwood forests in central California. He is the Codirector of the Center for Tropical Research in Ecology, Agriculture, and Development, and the Director of the UCSC Campus Natural Reserve.

President's Message

OLLI Finances and Leadership

Membership in OLLI and the tenure of officers is based on the academic year, July 1 to June 30. Therefore, it is time to vote and to renew your membership. All membership dues paid after May 1st apply to the 2022 – 2023 year. Voting for officers will once again be done online. See the article by Mark Gordon in this newsletter to see the slate of candidates and the procedure for voting.

Roughly half of our funds come from membership dues and course fees. The other half comes from our OSHER endowment. Two months ago we had an in person visit from Kelly Jane Rosenblatt, Program Officer for the Osher Foundation, which has its headquarters in San Francisco. Kelly Jane became the Program Officer only recently, and she has been visiting some of the 121 OLLI's around the country to see how they operate. She confirmed what the Santa Cruz OLLI old-timers have known: there are normal OLLIs, there are unusual OLLIs, and there is Santa Cruz. Nancy Mead, a former president, has written a nice summary of the history of Lifelong Learners at Santa Cruz. (Click on "History" at the top of the opening page of our website.) In 1984 a small group of seniors from the local community who were attending some classes at UCSC got together. This group started inviting speakers to monthly meetings and initiated the first interest groups. Lifelong Learners became a Friends Group of the university, but its activities and finances were completely controlled by its members.

The Osher Foundation started to support Lifelong Learning groups in 2001. Its model, which continues today, is to provide grants to colleges and universities, primarily to support special classes for seniors. The Foundation communicates with a local OLLI Director, who is an employee of the university. Although each OLLI typically has an advisory group from the local community, control of the program is retained by the university. Sometime around 2009 UCSC tried to start an Osher Lifelong Learning Institute, using University Extension to offer classes in Silicon Valley. This was not successful. The Osher Foundation and UCSC then negotiated with the Lifelong Learners Friends Group to form the UCSC OLLI we now have. In 2011 the OSHER foundation donated $1,000,000 to establish an endowment within the UCSC Foundation. That endowment has grown and currently generates approximately $60,000 each year to support our activities.

Santa Cruz is different from other OLLIs because a key part of the agreement with the OSHER Foundation was that control of our activities would remain in the hands of the members, represented by a Board of Directors. UCSC is our partner and administers our funds. We have gotten outstanding support from STARS (Services for Transfer and Reentry Students). It is an agreement that has allowed our OLLI to thrive. I think our OLLI is structured to facilitate more social interaction. Many activities that are "courses" at other OLLIs are done in interest groups in our OLLI - examples are American History & Literature, French and Spanish Conversation, Horticulture, and Memoir Writing. OLLI is undergoing changes in leadership both at the OSHER Foundation and at UCSC. All parties agree, however, that our basic structure with a strong, community-based board of directors is serving us well.

OLLI UCSC Board Election

2022 OLLI Election Update

By Mark Gordon

OLLI's election of officers for 2022-23 is on schedule. Here's the latest:

The OLLI Board announced its slate of candidates for Board officers at our April 24 General Meeting:

President: Barry Bowman

Vice President: Ginna Holcombe

Secretary: Ron Sekkel Treasurer: Cindy Margolin

Our 2021-22 Secretary, Guenter Vorlop, who has served OLLI well for the past 2 years, is resigning. Thanks to him, we have good records of our decisions and approved policies. Longtime OLLI member Ron Sekkel is nominated for the position. He resigned as Cochair of the Election Committee to avoid any possible conflict of interest. His former Cochair, Janis Bolt, now Chairperson, will monitor the voting process and report results at our May General Meeting.

Here's how the election will work: All OLLI members receive an email with a link to the voting site. Please do vote. It means a lot to those who step up to take these responsibilities to know they have the support of the members. When you get to the voting site, select each candidate you wish to vote for, and your vote will be tallied and reported at the May 15th general meeting.

The moment you receive the election email, the voting period is open and you may vote at any time until Friday, May 13, 2022.

Thanks for your support and understanding as OLLI conducts a third year of online "Pandemic" elections.

Instructor: Tatiane Schillaro Santa Rosa

This course looks at how visual culture and art in Latin America and the Caribbean have been part of ongoing decolonial efforts and resistance from the 19th century to the present. We will look at early modern art in Latin America, such as Mexican Muralism and the Anthropophagic Movement of Brazilian modernism. We will examine outcomes of the Post-World-War period in art historical discourses and how Latin American artists resisted dictatorships and state violence. The course will highlight the importance of Latinx and Latin American artists, with focus on Afro-Latina/o/es and Indigenous groups and their contributions to the realms of visual studies.

Commentary by Professor Emerita Ronnie Gruhn

We are again fortunate to have Ronnie Gruhn, Professor Emerita of Politics at UCSC, as one of our teachers. She has a passionate and undiminished interest in reading, writing, and talking about world affairs. Her courses offer powerful insights into what is happening today. Ronnie has been very generous in sharing her knowledge with OLLI members, and her courses have been exceedingly well attended.

Ronnie continues every other Monday. Watch your inbox for an email from OLLI with a link to the commentary.

Where in the World

Joan and Lou Rose

AFRICAN SAFARI: During our four months in Africa, we went with four other travelers on a three-day camping safari in the Moremi Reserve, Botswana, where we followed a leopard (our guide carried a rifle), watched a skittish giraffe cautiously bend down to drink, canoed past herds of dangerous hippos, and awoke during the night to listen to nearby hyenas and lions – as well as a troop of baboons that raced and chattered through our camp.

DANGEROUS HIPPOS: Canoe-paddling was a bit nerve-wracking because the most deaths by animals in Africa are caused by hippos - which pop up suddenly like those on the Disneyland Safari Cruise. Although they look like big gray piggies, these are NOT cuddly creatures and they swim very fast. We spent a lot of time anxiously scanning the water ahead, looking for clusters of little pink ears and googly eyes - and gave them a wide berth!

One night Joan wanted to use the camp toilet (a flimsy tent over a pit) before bed and begged Lou to come along to protect her, as hippos were grunting and snuffling nearby in the darkness. (They come on land to graze at night - going as far as 15 miles to find grass. You're not supposed to come between a hippo and the water because they panic and attack. Great - how do you avoid doing that if they can be anywhere between the river and 15 miles away? Just when we reached the toilet tent, two hippos REALLY sounded off about 20 feet from us. Lou said, "JUST HURRY UP!" and Joan almost fell into the pit. We were scared enough to run wild-eyed back to the campfire - to everyone's amusement. That night we lay in our tent and listened to elephants splash and hippos snort and finally Zzzzz.

DUMB TOURIST: Our big excitement was watching an enraged mother elephant spear and nearly turn over a safari truck like ours, driven by a stupid tourist who got too close to her baby elephant. (In the photo, the mother has already attacked once and is now chasing the quickly departing vehicle.) Our guide was indignant at the tourist's dumb behavior.

WHITEWATER RAFTING: Before our camping safari in Botswana, we took a day-long rafting safari on the Zambezi River. Ours was the first group of rafts that season to go from the top. Earlier trips began at the easier Rapid 7 but we ran Rapids 1 through 23 along 15 miles of river, including several Class 5 (expert level) rapids. Our four Safari Par Excellence rafts put into the river just below famed Victoria Falls. Each raft held six paddlers with a rowing guide in the back. One raft flew into the air and capsized in the very first rapid - The Boiling Pot - with seven people flung in all directions. Another raft went upside down in Morning Glory, with paddlers scrambling to keep their helmeted heads above water tumbling them toward the pool below where, according to our charming-but-not-always-believable guide, a four-meter crocodile resided.

Two of the paddlers in the third raft catapulted out on another rapid and their guide plus three other paddlers rocketed out on the next. Our own raft nearly flipped a couple of times and Lou almost launched himself overboard by catching air instead of water. Somehow we made it through - soaked and exhausted. It helped that everyone in our raft was an experienced paddler, while some people in the other rafts held their paddles backwards! They say this is one of the premier whitewater rafting trips in the world. We believe it! This one-day trip was much scarier and more exhilarating than our eight-day rafting trip down the Grand Canyon.

KALAHARI DESERT: Afterward, we hitchhiked from Botswana across the hot and dry Kalahari Desert to Namibia. It took us a full day - via walking and hitchhiking in cars and pickup trucks with local Africans. We welcomed this return to "real" Africa after our fun tourist-oriented safari and rafting trips. Swifties

You're just finished a book / art exhibit / concert / film and it was fabulous... or puzzling... or upsetting. You're undecided between two options and wonder if others have experience with either one.

A new law was just enacted and you're not sure you understand all its consequences.

You're struggling with a knotty problem and wonder if others have solved it.

A newspaper article / op ed / letter concerns you.

To facilitate social interaction, we're introducing a new opportunity to learn from OLLI friends by brief idea swaps. Want to share impressions, compare notes, or seek advice, perhaps only for one or two conversations? Email your topic/query to me. It will be posted in our newsletter so interested parties to contact you.

The Dickens Universe is an annual gathering of scholars, teachers, and members of the general public who share a love of Dickens's writings and his era.

In 2022, the Dickens Universe will pair David Copperfield with Frances E.W. Harper's Iola Leroy. It will be held in-person at UC Santa Cruz with some virtual sessions.

Reflections on how personal histories of coming of age play out through and against the mysteries and brutalities of history; confrontations with the claims of familial and community loyalties, as these come to be fractured, exposed, and reconfigured: through these and other ways of reading, Universe participants will explore what happens when these two novels are brought into conversation.

Through panel discussions by distinguished scholars, seminars, small group discussions, film screenings, performances, and daily Victorian tea, the Universe offers a week of total immersion in the world of Victorian fiction with friendly, like-minded colleagues in a beautiful setting.
