Is Aging Happy and Well Within Reach?

Harvard researchers started several studies 85 years ago to identify lifestyle choices that made people happy and healthy throughout life. One such study followed 268 Harvard graduates from the classes of 1939 to 1944, for more than 80 years. Participants complete questionnaires about aspects of life like mental health and marital quality every two years and submit health information every five years. Every 5-10 years they are interviewed to document more in-depth information.

According to this study, the following seven practices lead to happiness and good health: 1) no smoking, 2) no alcohol abuse, 3) healthy body weight, 4) daily exercise, 5) adaptive coping style, 6) lifelong learning, and 7) stable, loving relationships.

“Aging happy and well, instead of sad and sick, is at least under some personal control,” according to Dr George E Vaillant, former director and one of the study pioneers. “We have considerable control over our weight, our exercise, our education, and our abuse of cigarettes and alcohol,” Vaillant added. “With hard work and/or therapy, our relationships with our spouses and our coping styles can be changed for the better. A successful old age may lie not so much in our stars and genes as in ourselves.”

Go well, Ginna Holcombe
If asked if he had a motto, Douglas Garcia, the newest member of our OLLI Board, might answer, “Just try it and see how it goes!” And so far it’s going pretty well. As a recent member of UCSC OLLI, he agreed to try out being our Outreach leader and jumped right in helping us get going again after Covid by making us known to the community at large.

Born in Venezuela and growing up in a barrio close to the city dump, he seems to have used a rough beginning as a slingshot to success, starting with playing soccer. He loved the game and excelled, but one day it got too rough and he ended up with his leg in a cast.

The next opportunity—a scholarship to Europe—came a little too soon, even before his leg was healed, but he was determined to go anyway so he cut the cast off himself and hobbled off to England in 1976. The gimpiness was a small inconvenience compared to the fact that he didn’t speak any English, but, what the heck, you can learn a language when you’re immersed in it and besides he preferred Math and Physics. How much English do you need for Math and Physics? It’s not Shakespeare.

After six years in England acquiring a degree in Math and Physics and learning English along the way, Doug returned to Venezuela thinking maybe he ought to get a real job. He got a job at the Venezuelan Seismology Institute, but he was quickly sent off to Tsukuba Science City in Japan in 1982, a perfect place to do more research on earthquakes, and later continued his research at the University of Tokyo.

While in Japan, he met his future wife, Allison, an American who was working for the Ministry of Education teaching English as a Second Language. In 1986, they decided to come to Santa Cruz, where Allison had gotten her degree at UCSC. Many of us have lots of things “made in Japan” but Doug and Allison have something special—their daughter—Christine, and now a grandson. Doug went on to earn a graduate degree in Earth Sciences at UCSC and would have continued in the PhD program, but now with a family he began to think that being a professional student might not be the best way to support them.

Like many young families, they set out to find good jobs and landed in Denver, where the oil and gas business was booming and Allison began her career in communications. They stayed seven years and then found something even better in New Orleans. But they missed the beaches, the redwoods, and the climate of Santa Cruz. So in 1999, with help from family in Santa Cruz, they decided to return for good.

Once in Santa Cruz, it was time to find a new job. Armed with lots of technical experience, becoming a writer didn’t seem out of line so he got a job first as science editor for McGraw Hill in Monterey, then doing technical writing for Cisco, eventually doing systems engineering and training staff in India in tech writing. During this period Doug and Allison started to travel a lot, especially bike riding in Europe, New Zealand, and the USA.
Now retired, they’ve enjoyed destinations like Iceland, Patagonia, and Ireland. When not traveling, Doug is still eager to try new things—the hardest thing he’s up to now is learning to swim! Something tells me he won’t be swimming across the Monterey Bay any time soon, but who knows what he’ll be up to next?

With that abundance of worldly experience, I asked his advice for us. “When someone offers something new to try, just say YES!” It’s pretty clear he practices what he preaches.

Technological Toolkits and the Making of the Modern World

Thursdays, September 28, October 5, 12, 19; 10:30 - 12:30 pm
Location: Museum of Art and History, 705 Front St. and on Zoom
Instructor: Terry Burke

What were technological toolkits, and what were their relationships to the coming of modernity? These four lectures seek to answer one of world history’s most important questions: where and when did the technological building-blocks of the modern world first emerge? The answer, you may be surprised to learn, is not in Europe, and not necessarily in modern times. A continuation of our March 2023 course, we propose an alternative global history of technology in which it was not the civilizational “Right Stuff” of famous European Smart Guys that came up with key inventions like the algorithm, the printing press, and the compass.

The course identifies ten essential technological complexes (“toolkits”) that together made possible the emergence of the modern world. Rather than being of European origin, we’ll discover that they originated elsewhere, and gradually diffused to the lands of Islam where they were identified and made available for adoption. We begin with a general overview of the course. Each of the next three sessions explores the tangled history of a different toolkit and its role in the Modern Transformation. Stay tuned for the exploration of the bureaucratic/fiscal, the writing/information retrieval and the mathematical/cosmological toolkits. The project continues in Winter 2024.

Edmund (“Terry”) Burke, III is professor emeritus of History at UCSC with many years of experience teaching and doing research in the histories of Europe, Asia and the Islamic world. He was the founder of the UCSC Center for World History, as well as an originator of “World History for Us All,” an innovative NEH-funded online world history curriculum.

Women in the Ancient Western World

Tuesdays, October 10, 17, 24, 31; 10:30 – 12:30 pm
Location: Museum of Art and History, 705 Front St.
Instructor: Gail Greenwood

Have you ever wondered what we’re doing with bunnies bringing eggs at Easter, and pine trees covered with baubles to celebrate the birth of a Jewish baby? Gail Greenwood did, and it never made sense to her until she learned about women’s history. She is now offering us an 8-hour survey course she’s calling “Women in the Ancient Western World.” The primary idea examined will be that the story changes when the point of view of the storyteller changes; though the facts may be the same, the significance of the facts and even which dates matter alter when viewed from women’s rather than from men’s perspective. The course will begin with Prehistory — The Great Mother and her cave children, with an examination of why we don’t begin with the Greeks — followed with the Ancient Near East, Egypt, and Crete. Then we will (in a great sweep of thousands of years in an hour or two) look at ancient and classical Greece, Rome, and the Judeo-Christian heritage.

Gail Greenwood is a retired community college history teacher. For thirty-four years, she taught survey courses in American History, Western Civilization, and Women in both American and Western Civilization. In the 1970s she created the first Women in American History courses at American River College. You will enjoy watching her teach.

The Supreme Court and American Life

Thursdays, November 2, 9, 16, 30; 10:30 – 12:30 pm
Location: Museum of Art and History, 705 Front St. and on Zoom
Instructor: Arthur Rolston

The 2022–23 term of the Supreme Court was momentous no matter one’s political views. The class will examine four cases decided this past June as the term came to a close, and place them in legal and historical perspective.

Nov. 2: United States v. Texas - Immigration in history and law.
Nov. 16: Glacier Northwest Inc. v. International Brotherhood of Teamsters Local Union 174 - Labor law and the right to strike.

This will be the fourth class Arthur will have taught for our membership. Previous classes included the creation and adoption of our federal constitution, state constitutions in general and our California constitution in particular, and classes that looked at cases involving race and segregation, voting rights, establishment and free exercise of religion, political speech and campaign spending, gun rights, gay marriage, religion and health care, defendants' rights and criminal procedure, and aspects of economic regulation.

Arthur Rolston has a JD from Berkeley Law (1967) and a PhD in history from UCLA (2006); he taught various classes as an adjunct lecturer at UCLA from 2007 to 2020 focused on 19th-century America and US constitutional history.
Experiencing Baroque Music

Saturdays, November 4, 11, 18, December 2; 10:30 -12:30 pm
Location: UCSC Music Center, Room 131 (Look for signs) and on Zoom
Instructor:  Leta Miller

UCSC Music Professor Leta Miller will charm you with highlights of music from the Baroque period. Miller will explain the styles, forms, and aesthetics of the music of the 17th and early 18th centuries and lead you on a guided tour of selected pieces. The four sessions include: The Beginnings of Opera (music of Monteverdi and Handel); Sonatas and Toccatas (Corelli, Telemann, Froberger, and Bach); Fugues and Concertos (Bach and Vivaldi); and Dance Music (highlights from the court of Louis XIV). The course will meet in the UCSC Music Center, room 131, to take advantage of high-quality audio and video equipment. No prior knowledge of classical music is required.

Leta Miller is emerita professor of music at UCSC, who specializes in 20th-century American music, but has taught classes in a wide range of topics in Western classical music. She received an Eminent Professor award and an outstanding teacher award from the UCSC Arts Division. Her classes for OLLI have been received enthusiastically as we listened to and learned about music.

Tom Jones and the Origin of the Novel

Tuesdays, November 7, 14, 21, 28; 10:30 -12:30 pm
Location: Museum of Art and History, 705 Front St.
Instructor: Bill Park

There are many works of fiction from the seventeenth and early eighteenth century that we would today term novels. But it was not until the appearance in 1740 of Richardson’s Pamela that the reading public became aware of what they termed a “new species of writing.” At this point Henry Fielding brought his own extraordinary talents to play.

In this course we will examine Fielding’s comic masterpiece book, Tom Jones. Published in 1749, Tom Jones has never been out of print because it is timeless, not only in its humor, but in its answers to the meaning of life.

Bill Park is professor emeritus of Literature at Sarah Lawrence College, where he taught for many years. He received his PhD in 18th-century English Literature from Columbia University. He has written extensively about literature and film. We are fortunate that he has moved to Santa Cruz and is eager to share his knowledge with us. Our members who have attended his classes are impressed by his encyclopedic knowledge. He seems to enjoy teaching us as much as we enjoy learning from him.
The Holocaust

Wednesdays, November 29, December 6, 13; 10:30 -12:30 pm
Location: Museum of Art and History, 705 Front St.
Instructors: Peter Kenez, Murray Baumgarten

We are privileged to have a course based on the acclaimed UCSC class that Murray and Peter taught on campus. It will trace the destruction of the Jews and Jewish life in Europe by Nazi Germany, drawing on history, literature, and film.

Peter Kenez is an emeritus professor of History and specializes in Russian and Eastern European history and politics. Murray Baumgarten is Distinguished Professor of English and Comparative Literature. He was the co-director of Jewish Studies and the founding director of the Dickens Project at UCSC.

THANK YOU, Interest Group Leaders!

Thanks to your participation, we had a very successful Kick-Off Open House Sunday: lots of positive energy, laughter, and curiosity. Plus, feedback indicates that every interest group gained new members. Woohoo!

OLLI NEEDS YOU!

Art and Architecture: You owe Lois Widom a debt of gratitude. Thanks to her, this group is being rescued! Lois is temporarily renewing her group leadership. But since so many of you enjoy this long-standing group, surely one of you can take up the mantle. Contact Lois at (831) 423-0184.

Eastside Walkers: We need a walking group for east and mid-county! Similar to Anandi’s group, we would walk 3-4 miles weekly in different locations, perhaps as far west as Seabright or as far east as Pinto Lake. Sure to be a popular group! If you’re interested in leading this group, contact Ginna at gogetter9503@gmail.com.

We offer Spanish and French conversation groups; what about German, Chinese, Russian, Swahili? We have Walking and Jogging groups; anybody bike, hike, or surf? In addition to Tennis and Basketball, how about canoeing, swimming, or kayaking? We have a Bridge group and a new Mexican Train (dominoes) group; do you play pinochle, chess, parcheesi, Monopoly?

Simply email your proposed group to Ginna at gogetter9503@gmail.com. Once approved, all OLLI members are notified by email and by a posting in this newsletter column. You and your group decide meeting venue, frequency, time, duration, and structure. What could be easier or more fun?!

Handy Hacks

Aw! Come on folks. No response to my invitation to write a little tidbit for the newsletter? Ok, second attempt. I named it myself temporarily. I’m trying to be modern in my language—lifelong learner, you know. “Hacks” sounds like the words I hear these days coming from my various devices, even though I thought “hacks” used to mean something nasty computer literate nerds did to ruin my computer from somewhere on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean. But words are evolving a little faster than I am.

Maybe an example could be helpful. It doesn’t have to be something no one has heard of. It can just be a sharing of something that delights you that perhaps some of us haven’t tried.

So here’s mine. I love to travel. I hate to travel alone. In younger days with at least one friend, I planned my trips myself—find a place on the map; decide to go; find a cheap hostel; and go, as in Europe on $5 a Day. (Can you believe there was actually a book like that that delivered?). Today I have more money, less time left to spend it, and am less willing to use the shared facilities where I’m sitting on the potty and I hear a blast of singing from the baritone next door in the shower.

Solution: Let Road Scholar do the work and take one grandchild at a time on an adventure. The hostel turned first into Elder Hostel, then into Road Scholar which has a program specifically for grandparents and their grandchildren complete with company for both generations. I thumb through the catalog and mark the trips I am willing to go on—always somewhere new for me. Then I let the child choose where to go. I’ve taken three children so far—one to Montana hiking and zip-lining (I admit I only did level 1) but he did all 3; one to Colorado riding horses and a hot air balloon; and one to the Florida Keys where we swam with barracuda and ate Key Lime pie every night. Next summer I will take the two youngest—one to Georgia and one to Puerto Rico.

Disclaimer: It’s expensive. I get the money with a nudge from Uncle Sam who requires me to take an RMD (required minimum distribution) every year from the IRA I saved up teaching. Having such fun helps me not resent Uncle Sam pushing me around when I thought I was getting away with a tax benefit.

And now I’m over 250 words. Just imagine it as a target and send me what you think, and I’ll work to make it fit.

Send it to: msaspassia@gmail.com and mark it “Handy Hacks” unless you’ve got a better title to recommend.

Cindy Margolin (our Treasurer) and Gail Greenwood (former President) at the September 17th Open House.
